

Hello Darin,

I hope you have been doing well since we last spoke. I have been wanting to thank you for giving me the opportunity to work with Geo-Solutions this summer as an intern. I greatly enjoyed this rewarding experience and I hope I was able to provide some value to Geo-Solutions as well. I know the Augusta project did not begin as early as expected, but I appreciate the accommodations you made to allow me to see a few different jobs over the summer. In fact, I am very happy it turned out that way. I enjoyed seeing the different environments that a site might be in and the different challenges that needed to be solved for each project.

Now that I am back in school and my classes have picked up quickly since the first day, I find myself appreciating the field work I did over the summer even more than I did before. One valuable thing I learned from this experience is that construction plans/schedules and calculations can look perfect on paper, but not turn out to be exemplary once you get out into the field. Evaluating something from a field perspective is one of the best things I could have learned outside of a classroom, and I'm happy to take this lesson with me through the rest of my classes and my career.

Thank you, again, for this valuable experience. I am very grateful for the opportunity to learn more about the construction industry and work with great teams of motivated, knowledgeable project managers and superintendents. I know this experience will allow me to be a better engineer, and I cannot thank you enough for helping me grow. It has been a pleasure working with you and I hope we can cross paths again one day.

Sincerely,
Michelle Lisi
